

A founding moment for the Foundation

Fellow Trustees,

For more than sixty years, the Delta Phi Epsilon Foundation for Foreign Service Education has advanced the study and practice of foreign service, quietly and entirely through the work of volunteers. This spring we are launching the Foundation’s first organized fundraising effort, and it begins with the Board.

What we steward is rare: an endowment built from the Alpha Chapter House Plan, a growing slate of scholarships and awards for Georgetown students, and a lecture and programming series we are bringing back to life. Donor support lets us expand that work, and a strong showing from trustees signals to every brother that the people closest to this mission stand behind it with their own resources.

Your gift directly supports students and programs:

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| $250 | Sends a Georgetown student to the Foreign Service Officer Test (Bleakley Scholarship). |
| $300 | Recognizes service and innovation through a STIA Award, with Georgetown’s School of Foreign Service. |
| $500 | Backs a future global leader (Stanley Weiss or Halleck A. Butts Scholarship). |
| $1,000 | Helps revive the lecture series and expand student programming. |

Keep the doors of foreign service open

Dear Brother,

You know what Delta Phi Epsilon meant at Georgetown: a brotherhood built around service to country and a curiosity about the wider world. The Delta Phi Epsilon Foundation for Foreign Service Education carries that purpose forward, helping educate the next generation of American global statesmen.

Founded in 1962 and run entirely by volunteers, the Foundation awards scholarships to Georgetown students sitting for the Foreign Service Officer Test and pursuing careers in diplomacy and global business, recognizes service and innovation through our STIA Awards, and is reviving the lecture series that once brought leading practitioners to campus. It is the Alpha Chapter's legacy, still at work.

Your gift directly supports that work:

|----------------|--|
| $250 | Sends a Georgetown student to the Foreign Service Officer Test (Bleakley Scholarship). |
| $300 | Recognizes service and innovation through a STIA Award, with Georgetown's School of Foreign Service. |

Help open doors to foreign service

Dear Friend,

Whether you have followed the Delta Phi Epsilon Foundation for Foreign Service Education for years or are just discovering us, thank you for your interest. For more than sixty years, our all-volunteer Foundation has worked to advance the study and practice of foreign service, helping educate the next generation of American global leaders.

Founded in 1962 and rooted at Georgetown’s School of Foreign Service, the Foundation awards scholarships to students sitting for the Foreign Service Officer Test and pursuing careers in diplomacy and global business, recognizes service and innovation through our STIA Awards, and is reviving a lecture series that brings leading practitioners to campus. Because the work is run entirely by volunteers, support goes a remarkably long way.

We are inviting friends like you to help us do more. Your gift directly supports students and programs:

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| $250 | Sends a Georgetown student to the Foreign Service Officer Test (Bleakley Scholarship). |
| $300 | Recognizes service and innovation through a STIA Award, with Georgetown’s School of Foreign Service. |
| $500 | Backs a future global leader (Stanley Weiss or Halleck A. Butts Scholarship). |
| $1,000 | Helps revive the lecture series and expand student programming. |
